How Your Variable Rate is Calculated

We calculate the variable rate by adding a premium to the highest Prime Rate published in the “Money Rates” section of The Wall Street Journal for the preceding three (3) months and can change up to three days prior to your statement closing date. If the Prime Rate changes, your new rate will take effect on the then current billing period.

How Your Minimum Payment is Calculated Your minimum payment will be the greater of 2% of your outstanding balance or $40. If your balance is less than $40, your minimum payment will equal your balance.

How We Will Calculate Your Balance: We use a method called "AVERAGE DAILY BALANCE" (including new transactions).

Prime Rate: Your APR is variable and may increase or decrease monthly. The Purchase APR and Balance Transfer APR are determined by adding a margin of 7.99% to 13.99% to the Prime Rate. The Cash Advance APR is determined by adding a margin of 17.99% to the Prime Rate. For each billing period, we use the Prime Rate published in The Wall Street Journal three (3) business days prior to your statement closing date. If The Wall Street Journal does not publish the Prime Rate, we may substitute a similar published rate. A change in the APR due to a change in the Prime Rate takes effect as the first day of the billing period for which we calculate the APR. We apply the applicable APR to any existing balances, subject to any promotional rates that may apply. If the Prime Rate increases, it will increase the APR and interest charges on your Account, and it may increase your monthly payment. Your APRs may also be subject to applicable state rate caps.
